Need of 'Prodding' For Second Front Denied By Attlee

OTTAWA (CP)—Rt. Hon. Clement Attlee, Dominions Secretary in the British government, said here today Allied leaders do not need to be "prodded" to open a second front, because all of them are working on their plans for an offensive.

"To speak of prodding implies an absence of will, and I assure you that we have the will, but it is agreed that we cannot disregard the experts," Maj. Attlee said, answering questions of reporters at a press conference.

Allied Leaders Must Keep Secrets

It was impossible to reveal plans in advance, and he believed most people recognized this fact.

In a written statement issued in Moscow, Saturday, Wendell L. Willkie, who visited Russia as President Roosevelt's representative, said he was convinced Russia could best be helped by establishing a "real second front in Europe" at the earliest possible moment military leaders approved.

"And perhaps some of them will need some public prodding," a reporter referred to Mr. Willkie's statement and Mr. Attlee made his comment that "prodding" was not required.

In a radio address Sunday night Mr. Attlee also referred indirectly to second front plans. He said the men who have the responsibility for United Nations war plans regard the various battlefields as a "unity," and that their decisions cannot be affected by "demands made by irresponsible people."

Asked today about co-operation with Russia, whose spokesmen have expressed hope of the opening of a second front in Europe, Mr. Attlee said there is the fullest consultation among the Allies on war plans.

All Leaders Work On Offensive Plans

"You can take it for certain we are all of us working on our plans for an offensive and there is no need for prodding," he said. The second front, meaning a second front in Europe, had become something of a catchphrase. The battle of the Atlantic, the large Allied air raids on Germany, and the fighting in the Middle East and elsewhere all had to be considered.

It wasn't possible to point to any particular activity and say it was the second front. What was wanted was the greatest possible effort on all fronts.

It was perfectly correct to refer to the air offensive, for instance, as a second front. Hitler had been receiving heavy blows from the air and those blows had their effect—whether they were called a second front or not.

"All the fighting that is being done by the Allies is part of the second front and the fighting on all the fronts affect it," said Maj. Attlee.

Queen Suffers With Bronchitis

LONDON (CP)—The Queen has been confined to bed for the last week with acute bronchitis, Buckingham Palace announced. "While the Queen is making good progress towards recovery and there is no cause for any anxiety, Her Majesty will be unable to resume her normal activities for the next three weeks," the Palace announcement said.

Bennett Goes East

CALGARY (CP)—Viscount Bennett was traveling to eastern Canada today after a visit of nearly two weeks here and at the B.C. coast. He left Calgary Sunday night.

Calling Home Italians

Canada's Holidays Cut By Order To 6 in Year

OTTAWA (CP)—By order-in-council, the federal government today declared that only six statutory holidays should be observed by employers and employees for the duration of the war, apart from Sundays or weekly days of rest apart from Sunday.

The government order set the following as statutory holidays: New Year's Day, Good Friday, the first Monday in July (in lieu of July 1), Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Day. Labor Minister Mitchell said that in the interests of the war effort, "the government has found it expedient to declare its policy in the matter."

The order is designed "to remove the present uncertainty as to whether employees generally should or should not be required to work on each such holiday."

The order also sets forth that reasonable opportunity should continue to be allowed to employees for the performance of their religious duties.

Any collective labor agreement which is inconsistent with the order's provisions should be suspended for the duration by mutual consent of the parties concerned, but pending such suspension, should remain in force and continue to be observed, the order said.

While the provisions of the order concerning statutory holidays in private employment are a declaration of the government's policy, the holidays recommended for business are made mandatory for the civil service, and will be observed by the members of that service, with time off for the performance of religious duties as provided for other workers.

Chungking To Greet Willkie

CHUNGKING (AP)—China's war capital made ready today to give Wendell L. Willkie a festive welcome on his arrival from Russia for conferences with Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, who shortened a tour of northwest China to be here for the talks.

(There was no confirmation of reports heard in Chungking Sunday night that Willkie's plane had reached Sinkiang, westernmost province of China. The last specific report from the unofficial American envoy said he reached Kuibyshev Sunday from Moscow.)

The Chinese were eager to impress Willkie with their war needs, particularly for planes. Madame Chiang, who speaks excellent English, was expected to act as interpreter at least for some of Willkie's discussions with her husband.

Meanwhile the Communist New China Daily News said the most important point of Willkie's visit to Russia "is that he heard the universal cry for a second front."

Russians Battle 36,000 Germans In Stalingrad

By EDDIE GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP)—Fresh German shock troops rushed to the front by transport planes poured into the debris-choked streets of Stalingrad in an effort to clinch victory, dispatches said today, but the Red army, fighting from windows and rooftops and in the streets, held the city in the 35th day of bloody assault.

Northwest of the city, the Russians were blunting the German drive and unloosing an offensive of their own in an effort to slow the more direct Nazi attack on the city. In one sector, a large Soviet unit killed 2,000 Germans in two days, the midday communique said.

Dispatches from the front estimated 36,000 Germans were battling from positions inside the city and said they were being reinforced steadily in an attempt to overwhelm the defenders, who were replying on bomb-harassed communications of the Volga.

(The dramatically reiterated word that Stalingrad still stands fits like the needed part of a jigsaw puzzle into an Allied strategy which appears to be aimed at exacting as much time as possible for the preparation of action against the Germans on another front, observers point out. Each day gained, unless at the cost of Russian collapse, adds to the assurance of success for the stroke eventually to be aimed at Germany at the rear or flank.)

The fighting for the city is "growing ever fiercer and bloodier," a correspondent of Pravda reported.

"The whole city is in convulsion from the incessant explosions of bombs and shells," he said. "There is no time for the dust to settle."

The fierce fighting of the last 24 hours, with the Germans lunging into the city from several different points, has resulted in a zig-zag front with the Germans slightly advanced in some sectors and the Russians established in new positions to the west in others, one dispatch said.

The Russians were reported to have taken two more streets from the Germans at one point. The midday communique said two enemy companies had been wiped out in one smoking and shell-marked neighborhood.

Germans Claim Gains in City's North

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts, AP)—The German high command claimed today that several additional districts of Stalingrad have been captured by German troops.

The Germans, dispatches from the front said, penetrated into the northern section of the city, while other districts were being mopped up in house-to-house fighting.

Russian diversionary attacks south and north of the city were said to have failed.

Sawyer left here early in August for Montreal to join the R.A.F. ferry command. He headed his class when he graduated as a wireless operator and air gunner at Lethbridge. Before joining the air force he worked with the C.N.R. here as a freight clerk and for the Dominion government radio department. He has two brothers, William and Tom, in the R.C.A.F.

Names of the five men were made public by Eastern Air Command. In addition to Sawyer they are: Lt. A. R. Booth, pilot; PO. W. L. Jungo, observer; Australia; PO. D. M. Knowles, observer, Toronto; Flt. Sgt. J. D. Selig, Bridgetown, N.S.

Today's WAR NEWS Analysis

By GLENN BABB
Associated Press Staff Writer

Speculation on Japan's next move begins to eliminate some of the possibilities. The British authorities obviously feel a growing confidence that India can be removed from the list and that Australia is not in immediate danger. Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, who ought to know something about Japanese conquest schedules by now, having directed the losing fight for Malaya and the Netherlands East Indies last winter, puts in picturesquely:

"As to the Japanese, he's got his hands full. He's like a boa constrictor which has swallowed a big goat. He needs time to digest it in a corner. Japan is not likely to take on a job like the invasion of Australia or India."

CHINA STILL THERE

The most indigestible part of Japan's goat continues to be, as for five years past, China. Last spring, after the Japanese in a few weeks had seized the Oriental possessions of the United States, Britain and the Netherlands, there was a worldwide guessing contest as to the territory Japan would try next to add to her expanding empire, which already had attained dimensions which neither Japan nor her enemies had believed possible in so short a time.

Then, as in recent weeks, it generally was assumed that the Japanese would try for some distant, glittering prize—India, Australia or Siberia. Then, as recently, little attention was paid to the likelihood that the next major effort of the Japanese army would be against China. But so it turned out to be, for since the occupation of Burma, the only large scale operations of the Japanese land forces have been in China's east-central provinces of Chekiang and Kiangsi.

Thanks to the steadfastness of Chiang Kai-shek's still ill-equipped infantry divisions and the aid lent by the small United States air forces in China, those operations failed. The Japanese are just about back to the bases from which they started last May with nothing to show for their campaign but tens of thousands of casualties and months of precious time wasted.

TRYING TO SAVE FACE

That has been the Japanese army's big show of the last six months. The Coral Sea, Midway, the Aleutians and the Solomons were primarily naval operations. And the Japanese army cannot be expected to accept the Kiangsi-Chekiang defeat without an early effort to wipe out the stain. Its prestige at home as well as the empire's prestige in the Asiatic world—the "co-prosperity sphere"—calls for action.

This might, of course, take the form of a smash at Russia's Siberia. A victory there would fulfill aspirations cherished by two generations of Japanese militarists and effect a tidying up of the "co-prosperity sphere's" northern boundaries which Tokyo strategists long have considered a strategic necessity. As long as the powerful Kwangtung army remains on the Manchurian border the danger of an invasion of Siberia cannot be eliminated.

But the logic of Japan's immediate situation, in the opinion of some of the most experienced observers of things Asiatic, points more strongly to a new China campaign. The forays of United States bombers and fighters against the Japanese who entered southwestern China from Burma last spring and also against Hanoi, in French Indo-China, through which troops and supplies flow in a steady stream, probably are not without significance.

R.C.A.F. Planes Help to Smash Japs at Kiska

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States navy announced this afternoon that a strong force of army bombers and pursuit planes, accompanied by Royal Canadian Air Force planes, attacked Japanese shore installations and ships at Kiska in the Aleutian Islands last Friday, damaging an enemy transport, shooting down a seaplane fighter and destroying six other planes on the water and strafing two submarines.

The day previously a small force of army heavy-bombers had attacked Kiska, the navy communique reported, but results were not observed, indicating the attack was carried out from a high altitude.

150 JAPS KNOCKED OUT

In the Friday assault, the navy estimated 150 Japanese were killed or wounded.

Bomb hits started fires on one of the two ships in the harbor, the communique said, and when last seen the vessel was listing and beached.

There was no indication whether the Canadian planes which took part were fighters or bombers.

The damage to the transport in Kiska harbor brought the total of Japanese ships sunk or damaged in the Aleutians to 33. Of these, 13 were sunk, one was believed sunk, and 19 were damaged. This total represents both naval and army operations against the enemy in the Aleutians.

CBC Governors Wrestle With Salaries

OTTAWA (CP)—New recommendations of the governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation in regard to salaries for top-ranking CBC executives will not be made known until they have gone before the cabinet, Rene Morin, chairman of the board, said this afternoon.

The board met today and on the agenda was discussion of action on the original salary schedule, which failed to receive approval of the government. Mr. Morin at the conclusion of the meeting said discussion had centred largely about other matters and only preliminary consideration had been given the matter of salaries.

The meeting would be resumed later today and might continue tomorrow, he said.

It had been recommended that Rev. J. S. Thomson, D.D., of Saskatoon, nominated as the new general manager, should receive $15,000 a year. He had no salary as a member of the board. Gladstone Murray, present general manager who would become director-general of broadcasting, would continue at his present salary of $13,000.

Dr. Augustin Frigon, assistant general manager of the corporation, receives $12,000 a year. Rene Morin of Montreal is chairman.

(See M. J. Coldwell's statement on CBC, page 3.)

Anderson said any attempt by "irresponsible individuals" to foment wildcat strikes in Vancouver shipyards "will be met with strong and well-organized opposition by the trade unions."

Hitler Still Claims He's Confident

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts, AP)—Hitler "emphasized his absolute confidence in victory" in an address today to 12,000 young officers and cadets of the German armed forces in the Berlin Sports Palace, D.N.E. asserted in a dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio.

Hitler, "in an enthusiastically received address, outlined German history crowned by the huge fight for Germany's existence at the present time," said the broadcast. He then referred to "the high duties which have to be fulfilled by the officers."

Reichsmarshal Goering accompanied Hitler and led in "three sieg heils . . . to which all the young soldiers enthusiastically responded," said D.N.E.

The men were on the point of "returning to their detachments at the front," it added.

Floods in N.S. Disrupt Trains, 3 Lose Lives

HALIFAX (CP)—Raging floodwaters from a 36-hour deluge which lashed large areas of Nova Scotia last Monday and Tuesday caused three deaths, brought about the worst transportation disruption in 25 years, and did thousands of dollars' worth of damage to roads, railways, buildings and crops. Censorship regulations prohibited any mention of the storm until today, when conditions were nearly normal again.

Parts of New Brunswick felt the impact of the storm, but to a lesser degree than southern and central Nova Scotia, where most damage was done. Prince Edward Island and Cape Breton escaped the full fury.

GULLIES, DITCHES FULL

Fons of water fell during the downpour, which let up for only short intervals. The ground, hard-baked by nearly two months of dry weather, was unable to absorb the torrents of water, which raced torrents of water, able ditch and gully in small rivers. The Halifax area received 9.4 inches of rain, an average two-month supply, in 36 hours.

Three deaths were attributed to the flood conditions brought about by the cloudburst. Near Steviacke, N.S., Rueben McCave and Robie Lively, lumbermen, were drowned in the swollen Shubenacadie River. At Dartmouth, N.S., Charles P. Marshall, 48, was swept away in a stream near the rope plant where he worked. He was trying to rescue a fellow worker who was subsequently saved by another man. All rail traffic on the main line of the C.N.R. from Truro, N.S., to Halifax was tied up for 48 hours, starting Tuesday morning.

F. C. Elliott, 73, Barrister, Dies

Frederick Charles Elliott, 73, barrister, who was well known in mining circles throughout B.C., died Sunday following a heart attack at his home, 444 Linden Avenue. Mr. Elliott had lived in Victoria 32 years.

Born at Pakenham, Ont., Mr. Elliott studied law at Winnipeg and entered a law firm with his brother, the late George Elliott. Later Mr. Elliott established his own law office at Selkirk, Man. Coming to B.C. in 1900, Mr. Elliott settled in the Kootenays at Trout Lake, Enderby, and was engaged in mining. He came to Victoria 10 years later. At one time he was counsel for 22 mining companies holding properties throughout B.C.

In 1932 Mr. Elliott challenged the Jones tax on cafe meals by ordering a meal at a Vancouver restaurant and refusing to pay the tax. In court he proved the unconstitutionality of the law. He was one time president of the Victoria Conservative Ass.

sociation, was a member of the B.C. Law Society and the Pacific Club.

OUTDOOR MAN

A short, virile man, Mr. Elliott maintained an interest in mining exploits until his death. He was an enthusiastic hunter. When interested in a mining deal, Mr. Elliott often studied the mine itself and tested the ore.

He is survived by his wife at home; one daughter, Mrs. W. A. Shields, Saskatoon; two grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. K. J. F. Jamieson, Vancouver, Mrs. William Miller and Mrs. R. N. McClary, Pakenham; three brothers, Dawson K. Elliott, Winnipeg; W. A. Elliott, Pakenham, and James H. Elliott, Oakville, Ont.

Funeral will be conducted at 2 Thursday from Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel. Cremation at Royal Oak.

Stuart Clark Lane of Vancouver, member of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve, is missing on war service, following failure of his Royal Navy motor torpedo boat to return from patrol Sept. 14, naval service headquarters announced today in its 115th casualty list of the war. Lieut. Lane's father, W. S. Lane, lives in Vancouver.

To Be Used As Hostages?

Germans in France Hold 300 Americans

BERNE (AP)—The Germans have seized some 300 Americans in occupied France as potential hostages, diplomats here learned today, in a move which added to the tension in Pierre Laval's government in Vichy.

News of the seizures came from private sources in Paris. United States diplomatic sources were without official word, but it caused no surprise, since Americans in the occupied zone are liable to internment by the Nazis as enemy aliens.

Those held are U.S. citizens who for one reason or another remained in occupied France pending negotiations for their repatriation. It was assumed that if repatriation were permitted the Germans would ask for the return of an equal number of Germans in the United States.

The round-up and other incidents, especially the United States' endorsement of the British occupation of Madagascar, have served to create the most critical situation thus far in American-French relations. French observers of the Vichy scene said.

LAVAL'S DIFFICULTIES

Laval is faced with the greatest difficulties in the negotiations with Germany for 120,000 French workers, which private sources said had been demanded within three weeks. Mindful of the sentiment of the French, Laval declared this would involve strong compulsion, which he dared not exert, information from Paris said.

According to these advices, Laval is determined to pursue collaboration in his own way. If he chooses to stand against full conscription of workers, there is a possibility of his being pushed out of the government, it was reported. In such a case he could adopt the role of having stood for the rights of Frenchmen. There was one rumor that he had even threatened to go to North Africa.

It was reported without confirmation that Charles E. Bedaux, friend of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, whose wife is the former Miss Gern Lombard of New York and Tours, France, was among those taken into custody.

Bedaux recently had been in Cannes, in the unoccupied zone, but it was stated there was reason to believe he might have gone to Paris recently.

The round-up was only one of a number of problems involving Americans in France.

The United States embassy in Vichy has asked Pierre Laval's government to explain why citizens of the United States had been barred from air travel in unoccupied France along with other Allied nations.

MOVIE FILMS STOPPED

It was understood the embassy also wanted to know why American motion picture films have been stopped in transit at the Spanish border for the last eight days and why American film distributors in the unoccupied zone have been notified to close their offices Oct. 1.

Announcement of the restrictions on air travel, which threatened to increase friction already existing between Washington and Vichy, was made by the French airlines as Laval, Vichy Chief of Government, conferred with German officials in Paris after ousting the ardent collaborationist, Jacques Benoit-Mechin, as secretary of state in his foreign ministry.

The ouster of Benoit-Mechin followed a week of rumors of plots against the Laval regime and was accompanied by a statement from Laval in which he said:

"I shall under no circumstances allow the authority of the government to be attacked. This is more necessary today than ever. The government stands firm and there is no reason why it should not do so in the future. I am firmly resolved to carry out to the end my mission."

He did not elaborate on the reasons for Benoit-Mechin's dismissal.

New Front Talk Swells in Britain As Willkie Tours

LONDON (CP)—A declaration by Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell that British and American troops would fight their way onto the European continent as soon as possible shared attention today with Labor leaders' demands for an immediate government answer to Wendell Willkie's call for a second front to aid Russia.

Gen. Wavell, commander-in-chief of British forces in India, spoke in New Delhi in a review of the global aspects of the war and voiced his firm conviction that Britain, Russia, the United States and China would fight on together to ultimate victory.

"It is quite certain that as soon as ever possible both American troops and ourselves will start a second front, but I can't tell you when or where," he declared.

URGES QUICK REPLY

While Gen. Wavell was giving this assurance, Lord Strabolgi, Labor peer, was demanding in a speech at Wimbledon that the Churchill government reply "without delay" to Willkie's assertion in Moscow that the best way to aid Russia was to open a second front before next summer.

Lord Strabolgi declared he did not see how the Labor Party could continue to give "blind support" to the Churchill government "unless solid military aid is given Russia."

In Ottawa today, Clement Attlee, British Secretary for the Dominions, was asked by reporters about this statement. He replied that Labor was part of the British government. Most people agreed that nothing could be said in advance about the European second front.

PREPARATIONS?

He said questions which the war cabinet would have to answer were whether British authorities started preparations for a second front immediately after Germany invaded Russia "and if that were done why we were not ready 15 months later."

"Part of the trouble is the lack of unified strategy between the principal Allies," he continued. "The co-ordination existing between London and Washington apparently does not include Russia."

URGES INITIATIVE

Emanuel Shinwell, a Labor critic of the government, said at Newport that he had been greatly impressed by Willkie's outspoken statement and expressed the opinion that Britain and the United States should take the initiative immediately.

"We are told by members of the government that our armies are well equipped, that our deplorable shipping losses are rapidly diminishing and that we have overwhelming superiority in the air," he said. "If all that is true what are we waiting for? How long have the Russians to wait for help beyond the 1,000 or so tanks, some guns and plenty of sentiment which is of little value against Nazi thugs?"

ON 32 FRONTS

The opposite view of the situation was given by Lord Croft, parliamentary secretary of the War Office, who said in a speech that Britain already has fought on 13 fronts—"mostly against great odds"—and that she has performed great services for Russia by aerial assaults on Germany and by delivering supplies to the Soviet in the face of great difficulties.

He said Britain had inflicted well over 600,000 casualties on Axis armies on many fronts and destroyed 10,000 Axis planes—"the flower of the Luftwaffe"—which would have been "a devastating force against Russia."

"We went as knight errants to France, Norway, Holland, Belgium and Greece," Lord Croft said, "and when the history of this war comes to be written the amazing story of our ceaseless efforts to get airplanes, tanks, guns, supplies and clothing to Russia under terrific attacks will perhaps be regarded as one of the greatest sacrifices for an ally for all time, because ships today are our most vital need."

Russian hopes of quick aid, meanwhile, were given a boost by George Alexandrov, chief of the Communist Party's propaganda department in Moscow, who predicted the opening of a second front in the near future.

"The time is not far distant," he wrote in the party organ Pravda, "when our allies will introduce their armies against the common enemy. It will be an important and real factor for the victory."

Germany's outward reaction to this second-front talk was voiced by Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, who claimed the Germans would welcome an Allied attempt to invade western Europe.

Prodding Needed On Second Front, Willkie Hints

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Stalin's Kremlin dinner in honor of Wendell Willkie, which ended early Sunday, was one of the most intimate ever tendered a visiting Allied statesman and was reported as not too serious with Stalin, Willkie, Foreign Commissar Molotov, the United States Ambassador, Admiral William H. Standley, and British Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark Kerr in good spirits.

TOASTS

Molotov toasted Roosevelt and Willkie toasted Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill, while Stalin proposed a toast to Willkie, following an elaborate dinner at which Stalin wore his customary brown blouse and trousers tucked in black shiny boots.

After coffee in a smaller room, Willkie was shown a Soviet newsreel featuring the defence of Moscow and he took with him a picture of the defence of Stalingrad.

The Soviet press printed in full Willkie's statement Saturday advocating a "second front," along with reviews of his stay in Russia and accounts of the Kremlin dinner. The Soviet press also printed interviews with him, the first American to receive such attention. The space given in the newspapers to his visit thus was impressive.

NEXT SUMMER TOO LATE

"I take back a mental picture of a very gallant people firmly behind their leaders," said Willkie as he left.

Willkie's remarks on a second front were made in a written statement at a press conference. He said he was convinced "that we can best help Russia by establishing a real second front in Europe with Great Britain at the earliest possible moment our military leaders will approve."

"And perhaps some of them will need some public prodding," Willkie added. "Next summer might be too late." He continued:

CAN'T UNDERSTAND

"It is easy to sit in comfort in America and read about Russians dying by the thousands to hold Stalingrad."

"But I found it difficult to explain to one Russian soldier at the front, for example, why America and England are not ready now to fight in Europe in direct attacks on Germany. He wasn't impressed with the risks which our experts had pointed out to me."

Willkie said as he left that Stalin looked well but obviously is a man carrying a heavy burden.

He said he was a man of very clear mind and he pursued questions with enthusiasm and logic.

5,000,000 DEAD

Willkie added that it was obvious that no man could understand a country as big as Russia without years of study, but that there were certain facts it was important that America know.

Five million Russians have been killed, wounded or are missing, he said. At least 60,000,000 Russians or nearly one-third of the country's population now are slaves in Russian territory occupied by the Germans.

U.S. Group Wants India Mediation

NEW YORK (AP)—Fifty-seven persons subscribed to a statement published in a full-page advertisement in the New York Times today declaring: "The time for mediation in India is now—we are in grave danger lest the disasters of Burma and Malaya be repeated in India with even more effect." Among the signers were Clare Boothe, author and war correspondent; Alfred M. Landon, former governor of Kansas; Upton Sinclair, author; Herbert Bayard Swope, publicist and journalist; Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, and Dr. Mary E. Woolley, former college president.

At Washington, State Secretary Cordell Hull indicated today the United States was alert for any new Indian developments, but gave no hint as to possible steps the United States might take.

No Confirmation U.S. Troopships Sunk

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts, AP)—The German High Command claimed today German submarines had sunk three transport vessels and a destroyer in an attack in the north Atlantic on a troop and supply convoy en route to Britain.

"In the north Atlantic," the communiqué said, "German submarines destroyed the greater part of an American troop transport destined for England."

"They attacked a fast enemy convoy consisting of only a few large passenger steamships and which was strongly protected and carrying troops, munitions and war material."

(United States navy headquarters in London declined to comment on the German claim. There was no confirmation of the attack from any other source. German claims of large-scale victories over Allied convoys in the past have proved repeatedly to be greatly exaggerated.)

"In the course of difficult attacks and heavy pursuit fighting lasting several days," said the Nazi communiqué, "they sank one two-funnelled steamship of the 19,000-ton Viceroy of India type, which capsized after three torpedo hits; one two-funnelled steamship of the 17,000-ton Reina del Pacifico type which blew up following two torpedo hits; one transport of the 11,000-ton Derbyshire type, and one destroyer of the escort."

"Two other transport ships were damaged by torpedo hits. "In other regions of the Atlantic from the African to the American coast, submarines sank 11 more ships totaling 57,000 tons, so that the total losses of enemy shipping in the last four days amount to 14 ships totaling 104,000 tons."

Newsman Join Up

NEW YORK (AP)—More than 15,000 newspapermen from dailies throughout the country have joined the United States armed forces since selective service and the calling of reserves began in October, 1940, figures compiled by Editor and Publisher magazine show.

Government jobs are being done by an additional 2,153 men and women from the newspapers which are pushing the war effort on the home front by active drives for the sale of war stamps and bonds and the collection of scrap.

The army has taken 9,477 of the 15,876 men from the newspapers reporting. Those in the navy number 2,378 and in the marines, 519.

Mechanical departments of the newspapers have suffered the largest loss in manpower and find replacement difficulties greatest.

Coldwell Scores CBC Changes

OTTAWA (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, in a statement published in the Ottawa Journal at the week-end said "I should have thought the proper course for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation governors would have been to resign en bloc" following "caustic" criticism levelled against them in the report of this year's House of Commons radio committee.

"The statement said the Commons special committee on radio broadcasting, of which Mr. Coldwell was a member, had criticized the "existing policy of divided authority in the management of the CBC."

"Instead of devising a remedy for this condition, the board has made managerial authority even more divided by its recommendation. Now, instead of dividing authority between two men, it proposes to divide it amongst three," Mr. Coldwell said.

(Under a recommendation of the board of governors made to the government last month, Gladstone Murray, present general manager, would be succeeded by Rev. J. S. Thomson, D.D., president of the University of Saskatchewan, who will take office Nov. 1. Mr. Murray, the governor said, would go to a new post as director-general of broadcasting. Dr. Augustin Frigon, assistant general manager, has been controller of finance and his office was not changed by the other revisions recommended by the board of governors.)

QUALIFICATIONS

Mr. Coldwell said in his statement that the House committee had recommended appointment of a general manager with certain qualifications. He continued:

"We said, for instance, that he should be a Canadian of character and integrity. Now the board of governors recommends to the government the appointment as general manager of Dr. Thomson.

"Dr. Thomson is a man of character and integrity, but he is a member of the board which was censured—and properly so—by the parliamentary committee."

"I should have thought the proper course for the CBC governors would have been to resign en bloc. By doing so they would give the government a free hand to reappoint any member or members of the present board it saw fit, in accordance with the statute governing the set-up of the corporation."

Mr. Coldwell said the committee had condemned the "extravagant administration" of the CBC.

"In the face of this action, the board of governors now wants to replace the former administrative system by one even more extravagant. It seeks salaries and allowances of upwards of $40,000 for management alone."

Nazis Can Hold, Lochner Warns

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—German nerves are on edge because of the fat scarcity, Louis P. Lochner, former chief of the Associated Press bureau in Berlin, said here Sunday.

"Fats are at a very high premium in Germany, and this is playing havoc with nerves—people without fats for a long time become jittery," he told a newsman.

"Germany is not starving, because from the first day of war the rationing has been scientific, but still the people are hungry. One steak here would be the entire meat ration for about three weeks there. The people have not had coffee since 1938. There is practically no fresh fruit, and so little butter that one can almost say there is none," he added.

But the Nazis can hold out for a long time, warned Lochner.

"The war won't begin to end until we are in with both feet, and we're not in with half a foot. Yet we still carry on our civilian life as though nothing had happened," he said.

Gallup Poll

Price-Wage Law In U.S. Widely Supported

PRINCETON, N.J.—The U.S. Congress can put price-wage control legislation on President Roosevelt's desk on or before Oct. 1 with the sure knowledge that such legislation meets with the overwhelming approval of the American public.

In fact, Congress and the President, in devoting themselves to such a program at the present time, are merely catching up to where public opinion was one year ago this month.

(Since the success of the Canadian wage-price controls would be considerably facilitated by correspondingly tight controls in the U.S., the fact that such an overwhelming majority of Americans support this legislation is of great significance in the Dominion.)

If the issue of price-wage curbs were put to the 60,000,000 eligible workers of the United States in a plebiscite this week while Congress debates the results, judging by the latest American Institute of Public Opinion (Gallup Poll) study of opinions, would show approximately 43,000,000 votes in favor of such control, 7,000,000 votes opposed, with the remainder either not voting or giving qualified opinions.

On a percentage basis, this works out as follows:

71 per cent in favor of price-wage control.
11 per cent opposed.
12 per cent qualified.
6 per cent undecided.

The group with qualified opinions is made up of persons who favor price control but not wage control, and vice versa.

THE YEAR'S TREND

This type of economic regulation has been widely discussed for more than a year, especially since November, 1941, when Canada put a price-wage control program into effect.

The record shows that even before that date—in fact, two months before—the majority of American voters were ready to see price-wage curbs adopted in the United States.

The majority in favor was 62 per cent in September, 1941, with 32 per cent opposed and 6 per cent undecided. Subsequent Institute tests showed the vote in favor rising to 66 per cent by the spring of this year.

Recent interviewing among farmers in the Middle West, whose crop prices would come under the regulations requested by the President, showed 71 per cent in favor of price-wage control.

Says America 'Coming of Age'

How America is rapidly reaching manhood and maturity within herself and with the world, was explained by Bishop T. Jenkins of Nevada to members of the Lions Club Thursday in Spencer's dining room.

Bishop Jenkins, retired from the Anglican Church since last May, has spent more than 50 years in the U.S. and Alaska.

He told of the time he arrived in the U.S. from England at a time in American history when immigration was defined as a "tidal wave," with peoples coming from all over the globe to settle.

Speaking of the international border between Canada and the U.S. the speaker said: "Nothing is as important to me than that this border remain as it is."

"No two other countries live together in the same peace and harmony as we do," he said. "This should be an example to other countries in the future."

Referring again to the great flood of immigrants who entered the States in the later years of the 19th century, Bishop Jenkins stated that this brought great wealth to many and great poverty to others. He told of the great industrial centres that sprang up overnight in the Middle West, and of the slums that came as a result. Quoting books of American history, he said nowhere else were such slums and poverty to be found.

One of the more "boy-like" characteristics of Americans in earlier days, according to the speaker, was the nicknaming of aliens. Terms such as "Hunkies" for Hungarians, "Mike" for all Irishmen, and "Dago" for Italians; these were terms used daily and commonly in those days. "But that has gone now," the speaker continued, "we in America have reached maturity, we are coming of age."

Reverses Stand Of Famed Father

NEW YORK — Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. of Massachusetts, expressing great respect for the Nazis fighting machine, warned today that as a result of his experience in action against the Germans in Africa, he believes the United States has inherited World War II and can lose it unless the entire nation is geared to the task of winning.

Writing in the American Magazine, Senator Lodge, who served as major with the first American land soldiers to fight the Nazis describes his experiences and the conclusions he drew from them. One of these is that the United States must join some organization to preserve world peace, a view diametrically opposed to that of his famous father, who effectively opposed United States participation in the League of Nations.

"We all acquire a healthy respect for the Nazi fighting machine," Senator Lodge states. "We saw it in action, saw it sweep back British forces, saw it operate with witchlike precision and effective leadership."

NAZIS WELL EQUIPPED

"My own experiences convinced me that we can lose this war—unless we gear our whole nation to the monumental task of winning. Make no mistake, we have inherited World War II. We are the ones who will win or lose it. Our size and strength are as nothing if they are not concentrated and disciplined. Disunity, faulty thinking, self-interest and complacency can whittle down our size and sap our strength."

"We must be careful not to indulge in a dangerous overemphasis on our weapons of war. Some of us seem to feel that our guns, tanks, and planes are so infinitely superior to those of the enemy that they can almost win by themselves. Nobody has a greater respect than I for American ingenuity and productive genius. But the grim fact, as I learned it in Libya, is that the Nazis have some pretty fine equipment themselves, and they use it like professional soldiers.

"A man would have to be blind not to see that the German soldiers were superbly equipped for the peculiar rigors of desert fighting. German civilians have had to content themselves with ersatz makeshifts, but not their fighting men."

ROLE IN WORLD AFFAIRS

As an example of the "superb" German equipment, Senator Lodge cited the fact that German engineers carried extra parts for British and American tanks so that when our machines were captured they often turned up again later fighting on the German side.

Regarding the American role in world affairs after the war the Senator wrote:

"I'd like to point out that serving with soldiers of many nationalities convinces you that we Americans can't repeat the mistakes we made after the last war. We must assume our responsibility in maintaining the peace of the world. As I see it, we shall have to do it by co-operating with like-minded powers, but our co-operation will be meaningless without the strength to back it up."

"The details of the international machinery cannot be forecast now. But one thing is certain: Although there will be great pressure within our own country to do it, we must never again disarm by ourselves alone in the vain hope that other nations will follow our example."

Landing 2000 horses on the head of a pin

Far below, a mere pinpoint, lies the home field. Easily the pilot banks, glides — smoothly lands his air dreadnaught on the runway — like parking an automobile at the curb. It looks simple, but months of study, of painstaking training — countless practice "take-offs" and "landings" — went into fitting this youthful air Viking for his job. The other members of his air crew know that he can take them swiftly to their target and bring them safely home.

That is what R.C.A.F. air crew training teaches—each man an expert at his own job, each crew a closely knit team functioning as a single unit. And these young fighting comrades of the skies are proud to devote themselves to ridding the world of its bandits—happy in the opportunities that await them when Victory is won.

R.C.A.F. training in Canada is expanding steadily. More planes, more schools, more instructors are now available. Right now applications are being accepted for air crew at R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centres throughout Canada.

If you are physically fit, mentally alert, over 18 and not yet 33, you are eligible. Lack of formal education is no longer a bar to enlistment.

Must Not Fail This Time

ONE OF THE ENCOURAGING SIGNS of the times is the accumulated evidence that governments, public bodies, and private individuals are expending a good deal of time and thought in anticipation of the many and varied problems with which this and other countries will be faced when the clang of battle shall have ceased. Already in Ottawa the special committee on Reconstruction and Re-establishment, whose able chairman is Mr. J. G. Turgeon, member of the House of Commons for Carleton Place, has collected a wide variety of views on what should be done to cushion the transition from war to peace and how best society should be reorganized to meet the problems of what is euphemistically called democracy's new order. In our own province the Rehabilitation Council, under the direction of Minister of Education Perry, is finding numerous agencies and the general public eager to submit their ideas—which already have been compressed into a volume thicker than the average novel.

Naturally enough much of the material so collected may be more Utopian than practical—some even fantastic—but the important point here is that more people seem to be thinking about the problems ahead than is generally supposed. This is as it should be. Economic and social chaos reigned after the conclusion of the first Great War because neither governments, public bodies, nor individuals had given sufficient thought for the manifold consequences of the peace. The peoples of the Allied and Associated Powers were intent on winning that conflict to the exclusion of everything else. It was generally regarded as the war to end all wars, and the impression persisted that if it could be won, statesmanship and democratic commonsense surely could devise an effective method of rehabilitation and reconstruction. We discovered to our amazement, and to our tragic misfortune, that the winning of the peace was destined to be a more difficult task than the winning of the war itself.

What happened to the world between that conflict and the global war in which we are now engaged needs no detailed recapitulation here. Germany's invasion of Poland furnished the final convincing proof of the failure of international statesmanship; a failure, of course, for which the individual must accept a share of responsibility. However, regardless of the volume and quality of the information which federal and provincial bodies accumulate for guidance in an intelligent anticipation of what the coming days have in store, governments must soon make up their minds upon one essential point, a point on which our citizens must concentrate their attention, too: Is the reconstruction and rehabilitation program to be tackled as realistically as the enemy has required us to tackle the job of beating him? This is a question yet to be faced and answered if much of the patient labor of such bodies as those presided over by Mr. Turgeon and Mr. Perry is to be translated into practical working policies.

Canada will be spending this year more than double the amount of money she spent on the whole of the first Great War. In the succeeding 12 months that figure may be substantially surpassed. And our people will gladly find it; for unless victory, complete and absolute, is scored over the Axis nations we shall be living in a world where such terms as reconstruction and rehabilitation as we understand them will have no meaning for us. We submit that the whole question resolves itself into a simple argument: If we can find untold millions to save our skins, the soundness of which investment furnishes its own emphasis, we must be prepared to follow the same procedure to prevent at all costs the revival of the old practices which, in the last analysis, will produce more war. It should be marked well, moreover, that governments can do so much and no more; what they do depends upon the nature of the instructions they obtain from the people whose servants they are. Therein lies the responsibility of the individual.

And The Board Stands Pat

DESPITE THE TRENCANT CRITICISM contained in the report of the special committee of the House of Commons charged with an investigation into the affairs of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, not to mention caustic comment from sections of the press and public, the Board of Governors of the institution has manifested no signs of resigning.

Almost on the morrow of the publication of the inquiring body's recommendations to the government, one of the members of the Board, the Rev. J. S. Thomson, was appointed to succeed Major Gladstone Murray as general manager of the corporation. Not only had the reverend gentleman had no experience of the radio broadcasting business save that he had picked up during two years' association with the CBC, his residence in Canada covers less than half the period of the 12 years since he left his native Scotland. Nobody could or would question his estimable character and sterling integrity—the possession of which twin equipment the Board's recommendations to Parliament listed as the prerequisite of a general manager "fitted" to discharge all the duties of the chief executive officer of the corporation. It was also stipulated that such an incumbent should be, "preferably, a Canadian" with "education and experience" essential to "fit him to deal with public questions in a broad and imaginative way; he should have an enthusiasm for his country and its services and recognize the contribution that broadcasting may make to our national life."

As a member of the special parliamentary committee entrusted with the investigation, Mr. M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F., Roseville-Biggar), has found it impossible to remain silent in the face of the Board's action in appointing Dr. Thomson at a salary of $15,000, with Major Murray and Dr. Frigon at $14,000 each, or an increase in managerial costs of something like $13,000—salaries, incidentally, which appear too high for the government.

Particular point attaches to Mr. Coldwell's assertion on Saturday that while the committee had condemned the "extravagant administration" of the CBC, "the Board of Governors now wants to replace the former administrative system by one even more extravagant," with "salaries and allowances of upwards of $40,000 for management." The member for Rosetown-Biggar, moreover, cites the fact that his committee had criticized the "existing policy of divided authority and management" of the organization; but now, "instead of devising a remedy for this condition, the Board has made managerial authority even more divided by its recommendation to divide it amongst three" in place of two. But what strikes Mr. Coldwell as something akin to fantastic is that the Board, in the face of censure passed on it by the inquiring body, should have selected one of its own members for the premier position on the corporation. Of course, he thinks the proper action for the Board was resignation en bloc so as to leave the government with perfect freedom to do its own appointing. With this view most Canadians will agree.

Bubbly Von Ribbentrop

A PART FROM THE FACT THAT STALINGRAD still stands, Germany's Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, speaking on the second anniversary of the signing of the Axis tripartite pact, let himself go in Berlin yesterday with the statement that the fall of the great city on the Volga would deal "our antagonist" a blow from which "he will not recover." Well, we all remember how Hitler told his dupes almost a year ago that the Russian armies were so broken that they would never rise again; but von Ribbentrop improved the shining hour by particularizing on Russian losses. He put the figure at 14,000,000 in killed, wounded and prisoners, and confidently told the German people that the Soviet Union was fast approaching the stage of exhaustion in manpower.

The former Nazi champagne salesman may have hoped to stiffen the wilted spirits of 80,000,000 Germans and the populations of the junior partners of the Axis. But propaganda emanating from the Reich in recent months has reduced Goebbelsian stock to such an extent as to suggest that even Hitler must be wondering whether it is worth while producing such outrageous drivel. Mr. Wendell Willkie, incidentally, placed Russian losses at 5,000,000 men. Von Ribbentrop will probably discover, as his chief discovered, that Russian resilience and the depth of her manpower reservoirs will continue to baffle a Nazi general staff that is probably wishing it could forget June 22, 1941.

Mr. Taylor's Mission

MR. MYRON C. TAYLOR, PRESIDENT Roosevelt's special representative to the Vatican, had his third and final interview with the Pope on Saturday and arrived in Barcelona by plane today on his way home to the United States. What has taken place at Vatican City between our neighbor's envoy and His Holiness, of course, will not be known until the chief executive at Washington chooses to make it public. Earlier announcements suggested that one of Mr. Taylor's objects was to discuss with the Pontiff the war aims of the United Nations and, presumably, to obtain his reactions to proposals for meeting the impact of the aftermath. But it was also understood that Laval's connivance with his Nazi masters in respect of the deportation of Jews from France to totalitarian lands would not be omitted from the conversations.

It will be recalled that Mr. Roosevelt had issued a strong protest against the German demand that all Jews who had taken refuge in France since the advent of Hitler, in addition to those who had escaped the Nazi terror in 1936, must be returned forthwith either to the Reich or to other European Axis countries to which they would be exposed to the full fury of the new order. Those whose labor could be used to advantage naturally would be temporarily spared torture and death. Through the Papal Nuncio in Vichy, the Pontiff had registered his official objection to Laval's obvious acquiescence; but so far as the outside world has been permitted to learn the Vatican has exerted no practical influence to head off this new and ghastly act of "collaboration!" Mr. Taylor's third and final interview may or may not have thrown further light on the subject.

A financial failure doesn't hurt so much after you become accustomed to your new friends.

INTERESTING FACT

THE MOST INTERESTING economic fact in North America—and it is one that can be understood by anyone, even by you and me, without economic learning—is that the cost of living in Canada has been going down lately.

This, historically, is an incredible thing. Perhaps never before, in any country, have prices declined in the midst of war. They have always risen to ruinous heights in what we call inflation. They did so in Canada towards the end of the last war and at that time we were not under half the strain we are now. But now, according to the cold figures of the cost-of-living index, the historical process has been checked and even reversed slightly.

The housewife may not notice it. My experience with housewives suggests that they believe the cost of living is increasing. It may have on some localities, because the official index, of course, covers the nation as a whole in one large average. Nor must the cost of living be confused with all prices. The cost-of-living index covers only the essentials of life as a kind of rough yardstick. Prices outside those of necessities could rise without the government admitting that the cost of living has advanced.

For example, liquor has risen to a scandalous price, and for many British Columbians, apparently, it is a necessity of life. But the government does not admit it. The government says, heartlessly, that if you want to drink liquor you must pay through the nose for it and in the form of taxes.

THE MIRACLE

Allowing for all these variations and exceptions, it still remains true that Canada has performed an economic miracle by halting a rise in the price of necessities at this stage in the war. No other country has done it without the most drastic kind of rationing and price control, as in Germany. None of the other democratic countries appear to have done it.

However, the real test of our price ceiling has yet to come and it will come soon. Every day the government will be reducing the output of goods that people want; but every day it will increase the amount of wages paid out to the public. With more money to spend and less goods to be obtained, the drive towards a higher price, the incentive, to bootlegging and chiseling, will increase. Against this the government is using the weapon of taxation. It is attempting to take the people's money out of their pockets before they can use it to demand goods and to bid up prices. The question is whether the tax collections in total can keep abreast of the rise in purchasing power.

WARNING

This is what Donald Gordon must have had in mind the other day when he warned the Canadian people against pressing on the ceiling and admitted that the real fight was still ahead. Obviously it is still ahead and will become harder with every passing month, with every decline in the production of goods and every increase in the government's expenditures on wages.

And, of course, the curve of prices in the United States will vitally affect our position here. If Congress cannot apply a real ceiling to American prices our difficulties here will be almost insoluble. Up to now Canada has led its neighbor in the economic management of the war and the neighbor has followed, with a time lag of about six months—a fact of which Canadians might well be proud, if it were not their habit to disparage everything done by their own country.

If the United States will go the whole way on prices as we have done the two countries together can hold the ceiling and prevent chaos. The issue is still in doubt. In the end it will be determined largely by the willingness of the people to accept less goods.

AFTER THE WAR

When the war is over, we are going to give up the time-hallowed habit of licking postage stamps, pressing them on envelopes and then making that special pilgrimage to the post office. Coin-operated mail-boxes, which automatically stamp, post-mark and mail letters, have been placed in use in Chicago and Cleveland. The first new machines, called "Mailomats," were built before Pearl Harbor, and the constructing company since has converted to war work.

The mailomat is quite a neat gadget. You drop a coin in the correct slot, twirl a knob to achieve your desired postage value, and turn the rest of the effort over to the machine.

The machinery stamps, postmarks and deposits the letter for collection, and the selection is limitless. As much as a dollar in any kind of change can be deposited at once, and airmail, foreign and special-delivery facilities are available.

The machine can't run out of postage, because it affixes a printed, colored meter to the letter, instead of a regular stamp. You can't gyp the gadget, because it bounces back slugs or badly-worn coins. It eliminates all the old need of facing, canceling and post-marking. Now, if they can just add some device to automatically write the thing for you...

Game is the easiest thing on earth to find. All you need do is go hunting without a gun.

Parallel Thoughts

We trust as we love, and where we love. If we love Christ much, surely we shall trust Him much.—T. Brooks.

NAVY TRADITION

From Minneapolis Star Journal

Ever since John Paul Jones founded the United States navy it has been synonymous with volunteer service. A ship-navy men say—is too small a place for anyone to be who doesn't want to be there. It is a matter of deep personal pride with navy men to maintain this volunteer tradition—and the American people generally feel that they have a stake in that tradition, and want to see it upheld.

We got a letter from a Minneapolis enlisted man who has just gone through "boot training" at Great Lakes, writes he:

"We joined the navy because we wanted to. There was no selective service—and this helps make the navy what it is. We believe this situation is responsible for the navy's reputation. If there are any in Washington who think the American people don't feel as we do, let them take a look at what the navy has accomplished in recruiting in Minneapolis."

"We want to keep the navy on that basis. The mere rumor of change is affecting our morale."

What our correspondent is getting at, of course, is that the navy, from top to bottom, doesn't want the war manpower commission to end the volunteer system in the navy, as there is some talk of its doing and take blanket authority to tell every American of military age where he is to serve—in what branch of armed service, or war industry, or elsewhere.

There is much to be said for the selective service system, and the Star Journal said it emphatically at the time the selective service bill was before Congress in 1940. But it applies chiefly to the need for large land forces, which always must constitute the largest single arm of the service and which it would be impossible to recruit on a volunteer basis, in time of great need, without undue disruption of the tasks which have to be done on the home front.

The only question about maintenance of the volunteer system in the navy ought to be whether the navy can get enough volunteers to meet its needs.

The navy asks only for the chance to answer that question for itself.

Victoria Fire Risk in Raid Double That of London

Rudolph Haybrook, auxiliary fireman from London, England, who with Divisional Officer E. A. Baker is in Victoria on a continent-wide lecture tour, told A.R.P. wardens at Victoria High School Saturday night that in Victoria, because of the high percentage of all wood buildings, the fire risk during a bombing raid would be twice as great as in London.

Scoring the lack of interest of the public in civilian defence, Mr. Haybrook, a professional artist who fought fires during 298 raids on London, said every man and woman in Victoria should not only attend lectures in civil defence, but should go to the fire station to get professional instruction in auxiliary fire fighting.

"Anybody who thwarts efforts of civilian defence is nothing less than a fifth columnist and should be locked up," he said.

Although British civilian defence organizations were subject to ridicule in the first year of the war, Mr. Haybrook said civilian defence first won public admiration in the Dunkerque evacuation, and authorities now concede that without civilian defence units, London today would not exist.

BRITISH SLOW?
"Some think we're very slow in Britain. Well I could tell you who is slow without being personal," he said, pointing out that in Britain auxiliary fire fighting was planned as far back as 1935, organized in 1938, and fully mobilized three days before the outbreak of war."

Mr. Haybrook said not a soul in England did less than two jobs. He said it was not unusual for a man, besides doing regular civilian work, to be a fire spotter both at his place of business and his home, as well as being a member of the reserve army, which guards the coast and countryside.

Although no one could predict whether Victoria would be subject to air attacks, he said, "anybody who says he is safe here is a fool."

In the last war, he said, there was a slogan, "Keep the Home Fires Burning."

"You've got to keep them out this time," he said.

"What an indictment it would be," he continued, "if a son or daughter returning home after the war found nothing but a charred ruin and said: 'Father, what did you do in this war?' and you would have to say: 'Sorry, I did not think it would happen here.'"

PROFESSIONAL FIRE FIGHTING
Divisional Officer Baker, a professional London fire fighter, described the organization of the National Fire Service in Britain and told some of the trials and problems of fighting numerous fires during a mass bombing raid.

He paid tribute to the women of Britain who held the fort during the day and during the London raids not only served in administrative capacities at fire control centres, but also worked outside, driving gasoline tank trucks to fire pumps and even manning hoses in burning buildings. He said some women fire fighters had been decorated for their gallantry.

Although many fire fighters joined other services during the first year of war because they wanted action, in June, 1940, firemen and policemen were "frozen" in their jobs, Mr. Baker said, and before summer was over they were expecting mass raids.

London firemen received their "baptism of fire" on Sept. 7, when bombing began in the middle of the afternoon and continued most of the day, he said.

THOUSANDS OF FIRES
"The whole of the East End was lit up by thousands of burning fires, but by dawn all fires had been brought under control," he said.

The raids continued night and day until Oct. 5, when the day raids were discontinued, but night raids went on until the middle of November.

"By that time the countryside around London," he said, "was literally strewn with the wreckage of planes that had been shot down."

Mr. Baker described the difficulties of dealing with high explosive and time bombs, some of which were known to have sunk 80 feet into the London clay.

On one occasion, he said, the Jerries dropped hundreds of magnetic land mines which caused frightful devastation. Of 500 men who were specially trained to deal with these bombs, only 38 are alive today, he said.

Mr. Baker said one plane could carry 2,000 incendiary bombs and some nights they fell like rain. Buildings were known to have been hit by 60 incendiaries at one time.

"It is the duty of every man and woman, every boy and girl to be on guard during an air raid to extinguish incendiaries," he said.

He said the warden was the most important man in civilian defence because he was on hand during the raid, and he was the link between the public and the fire and other services. Wardens, he said, should know every building in their area, know every person, and where he sleeps.

NO RAID REACTION
"I have no reaction to an air raid," he said. "I think no more of walking out into an air raid than walking across the street."

"When you hear bombs whistling down, you know they will not hit you for you never hear the bomb that hits you.

"You get to a period where you like air raids," he continued. "They are thrilling."

He said that in Britain every man and woman between 16 and 60 must serve as a fire watcher if he does not serve in some other service and this had brought rich and poor closer together than before the war.

He urged Victoria A.R.P. wardens to go forward with their plans for civilian defence and to reduce the will of the public to resist.

"You must be prepared," he said. "Fire in the hands of the enemy is his greatest weapon. More damage was done by fire in Britain than by anything else."

Street Stamp Sales Raise Over $2,000

One hundred and sixty "Miss Canada's," recruited from high school ranks, sold more than $2,000 worth of War Savings Stamps in Saturday's street sale campaign, National War Finance headquarters reported today.

The sales, part of the continuing drive to raise funds for war purposes which will continue as long as the conflict lasts, was reported highly successful.

Young and enthusiastic salesgirls reported generous response from citizens generally. In many cases purchasers declined to take their change, a number made donations without accepting stamps and all types made purchases. A heavy demand was reported from the Chinese community with elderly people and young, both Chinese and white, converting their small change into stamps.

Service Station Hours 8 to 6 After Oct. 1

Victoria service stations will voluntarily reduce their hours of business from 8 in the morning to 6 at night beginning next Thursday, it was decided Friday following a meeting of Victoria garagemen with Dr. W. A. Carrothers, chairman of the Coal and Petroleum Control Board.

Spokesmen for the garagemen said today they would petition the City Council to pass a by-law to have the order made compulsory for all garages.

George Matthews, provincial secretary of the Retail Merchants Association, told a meeting of garage proprietors Thursday that eventually there would have to be a further shortening of hours as men would not be available. He suggested station hours be from 9 to 6.

Since many war workers, and other customers have found it convenient to purchase gasoline before 9 in the morning, the proprietors decided to open at 8 for the present and have asked the city to enact the necessary by-law to make it compulsory.

Cards, announcing the shortening of hours, are now being printed and will be displayed in service stations soon.

Because of an acute labor shortage, garages have found it impossible to give the pre-war free services to their customers.

Service stations, it was decided at the meeting, will continue to service tires because of the need of expert care to cut unnecessary wear.

Tire checking once a week is all that is necessary for average driving, garagemen said.

Customers would receive better attention if they did their gasoline buying during the week rather than leaving it until Saturday, the garagemen said.

It is planned to hold a novelty bazaar on Dec. 2, in St. Luke's Hall. Further details of this will be given later.

Meetings of this unit will be held every third Tuesday throughout the coming season, where all who are interested in this work will be welcomed.

War-Winning Glamour Restrictions Decree

Glamour, toujours, glamour!—This ladies is a priceless commodity, the superb blending of fact and fantasy, partly commercial, partly intangible and wholly to be desired. The men of battle, the men who fight monotony at a city desk, the men who toll with hand and heart and body to guide us through these days of uncertainty, all men need a dash of glamour and loveliness to spice the somewhat stolid fare of a workaday world. And women? We love it!

What's more it's a woman's privilege to be able to take a little of this, a little of that, infuse it with the flavor of personality and produce something everyone wants and no one can buy.

Every woman has it. Immediately I hear a wall arise from Marguerite. "But I haven't! I'm no Sheridan or Turner—just look at my dumpy figure!" and a desperate protest from Sue, "What could anyone do with a face like mine!"

I repeat—for the express benefit of the many martyred Marguerites and uncertain Sues—every woman has glamour. With some it is a kinetic force, with the rest merely a potential possibility.

Clothes may not make the man, but they do make a woman—glamorous, demure, smart, dramatic—anything you want to accent your own individuality. Provided you are in good health, the clothes you wear and the way you wear them play a major part in the glamorization of the female torso.

Again I hear dissenters. "But I can't afford many clothes!" I can understand that. (Especially in view of the little bete noire creeping up on us this month in the form of—pardon me for mentioning it—Income tax.) But I have an answer for that, too.

It is neither smart nor patriotic to be extravagant these days. In fact we have been especially requested by the powers-that-be to conserve labor and material to the limits of propriety, and I hear from one who should know that clothes rationing is imminent. The Wartime Prices and Trade Board has already listed the first instructions regarding the cut and colors of lingerie, coats, suits, dresses, shoes and hats; so far quantity of clothing continues to be the individual's own problem. The purchasing power of women is tremendous, and in order to curtail wastefulness, these regulations are worthy of our closest investigation.

Do you remember that frothy white dress with huge bell sleeves you coveted so long? You might as well stop dreaming for now they're verboten. You may have a four-yard finished sweep on your evening dress (or will you have one this year?) but only 70 inches on day dress. Oh, well, I always did like those pencil-slim skirts anyway.

Guard with your life those luscious lounging pyjamas you indulged in last year! The manufacture of such a luxury is prohibited for the duration. Also blacklisted are frills on your petticoat; shadow panels on same; all-around elastic on your panties, skirt zippers longer than seven inches; torso blouses; belts over one inch wide on anything.

Even color is being infiltrated with the fighting spirit. Hosiery is limited—very limited, the chief shades being, air force blue, R.C.A.M.C. tan, khaki and black. Four civilian shades are allowed. Shoes are to be manufactured in seven colors only, with no metallic trimmings or unnecessary leather bows. Basic tones black, navy, tan, brown, grey and white are the colors designated for zippers.

Nighties, pyjamas and slips have all been regulated as to size, no unnecessary flares, no overlay of material, and only one pocket. But it's amazing what one can do with a little ingenuity and substitution. The scythe of war has lopped of a few varieties of cosmetic and perfumes, but anyway who would dare suggest that "Hawain Love-drops" or "Scent of Cyclamen" are essential to the war effort. We can get along nicely on "Tweed" and "Nuit d'Armour," thank you!

Things to remember... three-piece suits, hoods, capes, cuffs, patch pockets, wool linings (these are out after Dec. 31), tucking, shirring and pleating; dirndl skirts; those smart little handmade matching hats; lipsticks of a myriad shades, and oh, the days of beautiful sheer hose at $1 a pair!

Never let it be said that we girls couldn't take a hint. Let's look at these rulings and stick to them, and then let your imagination run riot! There's plenty of scope still for the individualist, for the gal that refuses to be "typed," for the splashes of flame and fun that fashioned the neoplates of pre-rationing days. Only let's not defeat our own purpose by ignoring necessary restrictions.

Lets make our fashion caprices and feminine whimsies help win the war!

Solarium W.A. Jam Shower Started

Throughout the week members of the Solarium W.A. are making a special appeal for gifts of jams, jellies and bottled fruits for use at the Solarium. Supplies of these necessities are very low and owing to existing conditions are not coming in as freely as usual.

Many foods formerly obtainable are now off the market, but the ever popular slice of bread and jam is something that children, who lucky enough to live at home, will still be able to enjoy. It is good food, nutritious and satisfying, and it is hoped that the crippled children will not have to go without. They need all the help in their fight against their terrible handicaps and nutritious food is something they must have. One jar of preserves from each housewife in Victoria would make a worthwhile contribution to the Solarium larder. It is not much to ask and would never be missed.

Baskets for donations of preserves will be found in the following locations during the week: David Spencers, Hudson Bay, Estevan Grocery, Estevan Avenue; Henry's Grocery, 2007 Oak Bay Avenue; Beaumont Grocery, 1325 Esquimalt Road; Mrs. Palmer, Braefoot Road, Mount Toimie; Mrs. F. J. Field, corner Marigold and Lavender Avenue.

Donations of preserves or of cash for purchase of same may also be left at the Solarium.

THE MERCHANT MARINE

Fred Abrams, soldier-sailor, who, besides a long record of front-line service in the Great War, has traveled the mine-infested seas during this war, sent in the lines below. At least, I think Fred sent them. I met him after one of his trips back from England, and he was full of admiration for the work of the unsung heroes of the merchant marine. He promised to send in some lines written by a member of the merchant service, Daniel Malone, who Fred met in his home town, Liverpool.

You have seen him on the street, rolling round on groggy feet.
You have seen him clutch the pavement for support.
You have seen him arm in arm with a maid of doubtful charm
Who was leading Johnny safely into port.
You have shuddered in disgust as he groveled in the dust.
You have shuddered when you've seen him on the spree.
But you haven't seen the rip of his lonely, dismal ship
Plowing furrows through a mine-infested sea.

You have cheered our naval lads in their steady iron-clads,
You have cheered a cheer for Tommy Atkins, too.
You have trembled in a funk when you read "Big Mail Boat Bunk."
But you never cared a damn about the crew.
You have mourned the loss of every steamer and the cost, it made you brood.
But you never said "Well done, sailor!" to the man who brought you food.

He brings your wounded home, through a mine-infested zone,
He brings all your troops across at night.
He belongs to no brigade, he's neglected, underpaid.
But he's always in the thickest of the fight.
He fights the lurking Hun with his 18-pounder gun.
He'll run Adolf Hitler's little plan.
He's a hero, he's a knut, he's the blunkin' limit, but He's just a Merchant Service Man.

TECHNIQUE OF SWEARING

SUPPORTING the often repeated claim that the soldier of today is different, comes more quotations from the soldiers themselves, and I hope my veteran friend Fitz who is back as a sergeant sees this.

"The army is not the same as it used to be," he moaned some time ago. "The men are different. They read and study. They can't take their liquor."
"Maybe they have more sense," I suggested, "and probably they study because there is more to learn."

Studying some of the bright newspapers the men of the army publish, it would appear that most of the men in uniform do have more sense.

They apparently are out to take advantage of all the educational facilities in the army, bearing in mind the army is but a phase of their lives, and not to let carelessness of the amenities of life that barrack-room life engenders become a habit to carry over when they return to civilian life.

LIVE GENTLEMEN

Objectable swearing is one of the habits the new soldiers are guarding against. There is a distinct technique in cussing, the Vernon Rookie points out. If you swear, you should swear like a gentleman.

Archbishop Temple, father of the present Archbishop of Canterbury, once described "damn" and "hell" as the Englishman's safety valves. The word "bloody" which at one time you may have thought was pretty bad, has become accepted by newspapers, the stage, the screen and military communiques as all right for general use.

But the soldier in his little sermonette says the time comes in a man's army career when it is necessary to put a check rein on swearing.

"By all means, he says, throw bloodys, damns and hells around if it will give you any satisfaction," but he urges them to cut out "rank, rotten blasphemy." Soldiers will be spending 90 per cent of their time in masculine company. There is a tendency to slip into a style of swearing they would not think of using before.

"There is such a thing as being 'another one of the boys,' but there is such a thing as carrying it too far. Especially when too far damages the breeding and background our families worked with which to provide us," the army advisor says.

For every day, as army life progresses, the rank smell of blasphemy will be harder to deodorize when this is all over.

THE LAST WAR

Here is an item that is making the rounds for a laugh or two. It would be more applicable a few years before this war broke out and old soldiers were "beefing." The grouchies disappeared for most old soldiers when the country needed them again. Even some, who have been on the "burnt-out" pension for years are annoyed because they can't get back into uniform in some capacity. However, here's the item:

I am one of the fellows who made the world safe for democracy.

What a crazy thing that was. I fought, and I fought, and I fought, but I had to go anyway. I was called in Class A. The next time I want to be in Class B—Be here when they go and Be here when they come back.

I remember when I registered. I went up to a desk and the man in charge was my milkman. He said, "What's your name?" I said, "You know my name."

Across the top is part of the crowd inspecting the aircraft and listening to music before the stand. Lower left is the glider towed behind an aircraft from Toronto and landed near the Central Aircraft plant; the small inset, upper right, is B. Baranowski of Toronto, the glider's pilot. ## 8 Young Winners Get Toronto Trip

Results of final elimination contest of Boys' and Girls' Club at the Armstrong Exhibition were announced by Hon. K. C. MacDonald when he congratulated winners and addressed them on the club work.

The stock-judging contest is held by the B.C. Department of Agriculture to select two boys from each of four projects who will receive trips to Toronto to enter a national contest. In addition to skill in judging, entrants have to pass an examination paper, supervised by the deputy minister of agriculture, questions for which are submitted for approval by the various departments concerned.

Winners of the competition, which S. S. Phillips, secretary of Boys' and Girls' Clubs, adjudged one of the best ever held from a standpoint of interest and keen rivalry, are as follows:

Dairy Contest—Dick Berry, Ralph Barchello, both of Langley, coached by Tom Berry.
Beef Contest—Laverne MacLeod, Jack MacNally of Westwood; coached by T. A. Luyat, district agriculturist of Kamloops.
Swine Contest—Stewart Phillips, Tom Marshall of Armstrong; coached by Noland Boss.

Fourth team winners are to be selected later.

Tom Berry and Noland Boss have both been to Toronto, winners of previous contests, and are now doing excellent work training younger members. Jack MacNally is a former Fairbridge Farm School boy.

Assisting Mr. Phillips in organizing the contest were James Manning, district agriculturist for Prince George, and William McGillveray, who holds the same post for Salmon Arm.

Mr. Phillips is high in his praise of the work done by the competitors, saying the boys have worked hard to acquire information and knowledge of their project and are well qualified to enter the national contest.

CARELESS

I was on the boat 12 days—sea-sick for 12 days. Nothing going down and everything coming up. Leaned over the railing all the time. In the middle of one of my best leans, the captain rushed up and said, "What company are you in?" I said, "I'm all by myself." He asked me if the brigadier was up yet. I said, "If I swallowed it, it's up." You talk about dumb people—I said to one of the fellows, "I guess we dropped the anchor," and he replied, "I knew they'd lose it, it's been hanging out ever since we left New York."

Well, we landed in France. We were immediately sent out to the trenches. After three nights in the trenches, the cannon started to roar and the shells started to pass—I was shaking with patriotism. I tried to hide behind a tree, but there weren't enough trees for the officers. The captain came around and said, "Five o'clock we go over the top." I said, "I'd like to have a word with you." He said, "Well, what is it?" I said, "I'd like to have a furlough." He said, "Haven't you any red blood in you?" I said, "Yes, but I don't want to see it."

Five o'clock we went over the top, and 10,000 Austrians came at us. The way they looked at me you'd think it was I, who started the war. Our captain yelled, "Fire at will!" But I didn't know any of their names. I guess the fellow behind me thought I was Will. He shot me in the excitement!

HAVE A HEART
The door-to-door salesman was not at all welcome.
"If you are not off my doorstep in 30 seconds," said the householder, "I'll—"
"Now, what can I sell you in half a minute," replied the salesman, cheerfully.

The first use of poisonous or suffocating gases is recorded in 431-404 B.C., when the Spartans burned wood, saturated with pitch and sulphur, to drive off enemy Athenians with the fumes.

Lost Judgment On Day He Died

Judgment for D. A. Kennedy in his action against the late E. B. Andros, owner of the Harrogate Apartment, Oak Bay, was handed down the day Mr. Andros died last week, it was disclosed at the courthouse today.

The judgment was the outcome of a dispute between Mr. Kennedy and his landlord over withdrawal of water services to the tenant, who sued for damages.

The case was heard by Judge C. J. Lennox in County Court prior to the summer recess. The judgment follows:

"Having carefully perused the written argument submitted by Mr. Beckwith, counsel for the plaintiff, and Mr. Harrison, counsel for the defendant, and having given careful thought to the effect of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board regulations, and having considered the evidence fully, I have come to the following conclusions:

"1. The plaintiff is entitled to damages and I assess these at $30.25 special. (He is not entitled to board, and the above sum is as near as I can get to the amount he is entitled to for lodging.)

"2. Seventy-five dollars for general damages.

"3. Costs in respect of the above sums.

"4. Payment out of the sum of $51.50 in court of which 17.30ths is applicable to the rent for the month of May, 1930ths of same not being payable as rent, as he was not receiving the proper return for rent.

"5. The claim for an injunction is refused.

"6. The claim that the defendant be ordered to restore water supply and to continue the said supply without interruption is refused.

"7. The defendant's counterclaim is dismissed in toto.

"8. Costs to the plaintiff on the counterclaim."

Sewing meeting of the Women's Benefit Association will be held at the home of Mrs. L. Schmeiz, 1808 Finlayson Street, Tuesday evening, with Mesdames Ballies, Davis and Mattison assisting the hostess.

Owing to the removal to Vancouver of the various units connected with the Apasco, it was decided, at a special meeting held recently, with Mrs. R. Stuart presiding, to disband. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Stuart and the officers, also to all members of the five auxiliaries who have assisted so ably at the various functions held, and to the general public for its support.

Daughters of England, Princess Alexander Lodge No. 18, D.O.E., met recently in the S.O.E. Hall, Broad Street, Mrs. G. M. Baker presiding. It was arranged to hold a fall bazaar in the S.O.E. Hall Thursday, Nov. 5, with Mrs. I. G. Bell, convener; home cooking, Mrs. H. Smith and Mrs. S. Waceman; miscellaneous, Mrs. M. Dwyer and Mrs. A. Bell; needlework, Mrs. M. Gosnell and Mrs. A. Delahoy; afternoon tea, Mrs. S. Shingleton. A show for the bazaar will be held after the next meeting on Thursday at 7.30.

Plans for a rummage and surplus sale to be held at 737 Pandora Avenue on Saturday, Oct. 3, were completed at a meeting of the members of the committee for medical aid for China, held recently. It was decided that no sales of any kind would be made on Friday, Oct. 2, but the office will be open for contributions of rummage supplies. Some good material has already been received, including a beaver fur coat.

A feature of the treasurer's report was the sending of $2,959 to Chungking for the account of the China Defence League during the 3½-month period since the last meeting, and the collection of $367.33 from boxes in Chinese stores in Victoria, Port Alberni and Nanaimo, while expenses were maintained at the usual low figure. Gratification was expressed at the arrangements whereby it is now possible to send an unlimited amount of money to China for relief purposes. It was decided to send another shipment of bandages to Russia shortly, as well as the best of the warm clothing on hand, since it is still impossible to ship to China. No expense in connection with shipment will be entailed, as it will be turned over to the Russian Aid Committee.

The four-prize tombola will be awarded shortly after the rummage sale; at which time the Christmas tombola will be commenced, with a new vanity walnut dresser and a cedar chest as first and second prizes, and other less valuable prizes.

Monthly meeting of the Presbyterian Presbyterial executive of the W.M.S. was held Friday afternoon in the lecture room of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Dickson and Mrs. Sloan of St. Paul's Church conducted the devotions. Following the routine business and the reports of the various secretaries, the meeting discussed the opportunity of opening up work among the East Indians in this city and on the island. The meeting in its deliberations went on record as protesting and deploring the following: The movement afoot to have the picture shows open on the Lord's Day; the performance on the Lord's Day of all unnecessary labor; the fact that while everyday necessities are rationed, nothing has been done to curtail or restrict the manufacture or the sale of liquor.

A large amount of business marked the meeting of the Presbyterial executive, which met in First United Church choir room on Friday afternoon. Mrs. W. J. Graham, who presided, conducted the devotional, choosing as her topic "Strength for These Days." She referred to the success of the recent fall rally in Oak Bay United Church, which was addressed by Mrs. W. G. Wilson, and also welcomed a visitor from Toronto in the person of Miss Violet Ching, formerly of the Oriental Home here. The annual good will tour of up-island auxiliaries by a representative of the executive was discussed at length, but no decision was made pending the outcome of a motion to contact one of the vice-presidents in Nanaimo. Mrs. J. W. Alton, recording secretary, presented the minutes, as well as a report on the East Indian work.

The treasurer, Mrs. S. H. Shaw, reported the sum of $2,820 had been received during the first half of the year. Various items and resolutions dealing with the liquor question were given in detail by the temperance secretary, Mrs. Alex. Swainson.

A pleasant feature followed the lengthy business session, when Mrs. Jas. Hood, on behalf of the executive and members of the advisory committee of the Oriental Home, presented Mrs. Johansen, formerly Miss Mabel Carroll, with a pair of beautiful framed pictures, and conveying the congratulations and good wishes of all on her recent marriage. It was gratifying to know, she said, that the recipient was to continue her good work among the Chinese of the city. Graciously accepting the gift, Mrs. Johansen in reply paid special tribute to the home committee, whose ready co-operation at all times had added pleasure to her tasks and had lightened the burden of her responsibilities. The president reminded the members on adjournment the next meeting would be held on Friday, Oct. 30.

W.A. to the Navy League (Victoria branch) held its monthly meeting at Prince Robert House on Friday with the president, Mrs. R. Shanks, in the chair. It was arranged to hold a "games night" on October 19 at the Prince Robert House in aid of the funds for the Rainbow Sea Cadets.

The flag which is being given to the Sea Cadets by the Auxiliary will be presented to them at their headquarters in the near future. Fifteen ditty bags for the Merchant Marine have been filled by the members, the cost of each being $4. Mrs. C. E. Smith-Nell is convening the auxiliary's Corner for the Navy League's (Victoria branch) tag day. Anyone willing to help tag is asked to telephone G 6354.

It was reported that the canteen at the Prince Robert House which is run by the auxiliary is being very well patronized, the number of meals served showing a continual increase.

'The Ambersons,' Dominion Picture

Tim Holt and young Anne Baxter, who met for the first time when they were cast as sweethearts in Orson Welles' production of "The Magnificent Ambersons," coming to the Dominion Theatre tomorrow, discovered that they have two avid interests in common—these are acting and horses.

Young Holt maintains a fifteen-acre ranch in San Fernando Valley, a 30-minute jaunt from Hollywood, where he has stables with stalls for 16 horses.

Miss Baxter, however, has no such associations to bolster her interest in riding in the Western fashion. Born in Indiana, the young screen player spent most of her life in the east.

The RKO Radio film covers the period from 1885 to 1913 in a mid-western city transformed by the influx of the industrial age. Miss Baxter is seen as the daughter of a rising motor-car manufacturer; Holt as the spoiled and arrogant representative of the one-time leading family of the town.

RODDY McDOWALL IN 'SON OF FURY'

Roddy McDowall, 20th Century-Fox's 12-year-old English actor, likes to draw up his own contracts with the studio. While working on his latest film, "Son of Fury," the story of Benjamin Blake, Roddy brought out an extra contract of his own which provided for cash on the spot at the end of each film.

His interested employers asked him how much he thought he should be paid per picture and, after much thought, he figured that the prodigious sum of $10 would be about right. This was agreed upon and the cash was forthcoming upon the completion of "Son of Fury," which stars Tyrone Power at the Rio Theatre. In "Son of Fury," Roddy plays Tyrone Power as a youth.

'TRIPOLI,' STORY OF WAKE ISLAND

The smashing story of what it takes to turn out a fighting "leatherneck" has been brilliantly brought to the screen in 20th Century-Fox's Technicolor epic, "To the Shores of Tripoli," which opens at the Cadet Theatre today.

The Darryl F. Zanuck production is a credit to those men who fought their way to glorious posterity at Wake Island.

There is nothing more heroically traditional than the spirit of the marines, and "To the Shores of Tripoli" shows what makes them that way.

100 Harpists Play in Film

A hundred harps playing at once provided a musical search of some weeks to locate that number of harpists to play with organs for a "heavenly" musical sequence. This task was accomplished in filming "I Married an Angel," new co-starring vehicle of Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy currently at the Capitol Theatre.

The romance deals with a wealthy playboy who dreams he married an angel who gets him into all manner of comical complications. Much of the story is staged fantastically, as people see things in dreams. Elaborate musical sequences, with beautiful girls impersonating angels and modern sirens, are woven among the comedy episodes.

Major W. S. Van Dyke II, who first directed the singing romancers in "Naughty Marietta," directed the musical.

YORK PRESENTS GREAT MUSICAL
 A brilliant singing star made her debut as a motion picture star today at the York Theatre in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Chocolate Soldier," and the result is something to talk about. She is Rise Stevens, Metropolitan opera star, who appears opposite Nelson Eddy.
 Glamorous, and blessed with a voice seldom heard on the screen, Miss Stevens merges as a captivating personality who not only can sing but can act as well.
 The story casts Eddy and Miss Stevens as the musical comedy toasts of Vienna, whose harum-scarum marital life is caused by Eddy's pathological jealousy of his wife. Reaching an unbearable point in their lives together, Eddy masquerades as a Russian singer and sets out to make love to his own wife as his own rival.
NEW FORMBY COMEDY HERE
 Each new George Formby comedy is a film event, for in the history of the cinema, few great stars have equalled our George's record for beating his own records with each successive comedy. "Turned Out Nice Again," now at the Oak Bay and Plaza Theatres, has other claims to the public's attention, however. It is George Formby's last film for Ealing studios. His contract with the company has expired, after a series of hits.
 The story has George as a young assistant in an underwear manufacturing company whose promotion to an executive job enables him to realize his ambition and marry the girl. But the girl finds the bargain carries with it the unwelcome presence of a nightmare—a mother-in-law—George's "mother," who has been so often invoked but never before seen in Formby comedies. George meets with disaster.

TOWN TOPICS

George Smith, 2764 Dewdney Avenue, reported to police at 10.30 Saturday night his 1939 Nash Sedan, license number 17-521, had been stolen from outside the Six Mile House.

J. R. Peers, president, and Dr. C. G. Carl represented the Victoria Lions Club Saturday at the opening of a Lions Club branch at Port Angeles. The delegates presented a Union Jack to the new club. Today Art Cann left for Burlington, Wash., to attend a zone meeting of the Lions.

William Preese was sentenced to 10 days when he appeared in police court today, convicted of obtaining $10 in goods and money by means of a worthless cheque. Magistrate Henry C. Hall told the court he had purposely made sentence light because of Preese's intention to ship aboard a deep sea vessel.

Due to the cancellation by Mayor Andrew McGavin of his scheduled talk on the convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities at Kamloops, Gyro Club members today attended the Canadian Club luncheon instead of holding their own luncheon to hear the mayor.

Emile Carpentier was fined $40 and his driver's license was suspended for three months when he pleaded guilty in police court today to dangerous driving at Johnson and Government, Sept. 19. The charge arose from an accident when Carpentier's truck, going through a red light, struck a young girl.

Major L. Bullock-Webster, president, announces the Provincial Drama Association annual meeting will be held Oct. 29 in the Hotel Vancouver, Vancouver. He said the meeting will be open to everyone interested in drama, but voting will be restricted to members and those holding valid proxies.

Expecting to find a drunken woman in the office of the Beverly Hotel, police arrived there shortly after 12.05 this morning to find the office ransacked, $8.79 missing from the open safe and $3 missing from a drawer. Police had received a call a few moments before, informing them a drunken woman was lying on the office floor, but when they arrived she was gone and so was the money.

Charles R. Sewell-Fenn was remanded until Tuesday for sentence when convicted in police court today of stealing two suits of clothing, the property of Rex Spencer, Sept. 19. Detective Percy Richards testified that he arrested him in Vancouver and found the suits there. Sewell-Fenn maintained he borrowed them from Spencer. He said he was a good friend of Spencer's, and each had been in the habit of borrowing the other's belongings when they needed them.

Patullo Returns

Former Premier T. D. Patullo has returned to his Victoria home after a visit to northern British Columbia and his constituency of Prince Rupert.

"They're going ahead up there amazingly," Mr. Patullo said of Prince Rupert. "Millions and millions of dollars are being spent there. There is great activity throughout the entire northland."

The weekly meeting of the Church of Our Lord pack opened on Thursday with flag break and the grand howl. Following a bean-bag relay, instruction was given in semaphore and tender-pod tests. The Cubs did the dance of Baloo. Edward Erb was invested as a cub. The meeting closed with the grand howl and cub prayer.

Test Release Of Ship-jumper

Rearrest of Constantinos Pantelidis, Greek fireman who jumped ship from Ss. Boris and refused to rejoin it or sail as a seaman on any other foreign-going merchant ship, is sought in an appeal taken on behalf of the King and the Minister of National Defence for Naval Services in Court of Appeal here today.

Pantelidis left the ship after it had gone to Vancouver from Victoria, where it lay for approximately a year. He refused to sail and was held in custody for three months under provisions of the War Measure Act relating to seamen. A day or two before the expiration of the three months, a board of inquiry convened to review his case and see if he would sail on any other ship through the manning pool in Vancouver. Pantelidis said he would not, that he wished to remain in B.C. and go fishing. Acting under its powers, the board ordered him sent to Oakalla for a further six months.

While there he was freed on a writ of habeas corpus by an order of Mr. Justice Robertson, who, Dugald Donaghy, K.C., said, held the whole proceedings were illegal because the accused was compelled to give evidence, that the inquiry which led to his custody was a trial on a criminal charge and that his conviction was wrong.

The whole board and procedure followed was of a civil character, Mr. Donaghy, who represents the minister for naval service, said. The regulations were aimed at disciplining and regulating the conduct of seamen in order to persuade them to sail on merchant ships in wartime and the object of the regulations was not punishment. The persuasion, counsel added, was strenuous when necessary.

Mr. Donaghy added some seamen jumped ship in B.C. and declined to return to the war zone. For that reason the regulations had been brought in.

T. G. McLean appears for Pantelidis.

PROMOTED

Word has been received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fleming Gardner, 367 Robertson Street, that WO2 Harold Gardner has been promoted to the rank of Pilot Officer. Before joining the R.C.A.F. PO. Gardner was a member of the Times advertising department.

Maitland to Talk Liquor in Ottawa

Attorney-General R. L. Maitland, in Ottawa next week, will tell Dominion Government further tightening of liquor laws throughout Canada is a matter for federal authorities.

As he studied today's press reports of Manitoba's efforts in this regard, the Attorney-General said: "The administration of the Liquor Act is under the Liquor Control Board. Any change in the liquor law is, of course, a matter of policy to be determined by the government."

"My particular duty is to see that the law is enforced. I have been in touch with Ottawa in reference to the control of liquor, which I think should be handled by Ottawa in the same way they have undertaken to ration tea, sugar and other products. The Prime Minister has announced that the Dominion Government will act in the matter and I propose to discuss this with Ottawa authorities next week, and will report back to the cabinet on my return."

Firemen Address A.R.P. Workers Tonight

Divisional officer E. A. Baker and Rudolph Haybrook, veteran fireman of 298 raids on London, will address a mass meeting of A.R.P. workers at Victoria High School at 7.45 tonight. The speakers will be introduced by Alderman A. Wills, chairman of the Victoria fire wardens. The public is invited to attend.

This morning the firemen were taken on a tour of the city and at noon addressed the Canadian and Gyro Clubs at the Empress Hotel.

This afternoon Mr. Baker spoke to Victoria High School students and 1,500 men at the Naval Barracks, Esquimalt, while Mr. Haybrook spoke to Central Junior High School students and members of the Parliament Building A.R.P. staff.

Tuesday the firemen will address Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt high school students and a mass meeting of A.R.P. workers and friends at the Willows Arena.

Sphagnum moss has been used with excellent results as a surgical dressing material, being better than absorbent cotton for some types of dressing.

Preserving Sugar

H. C. Oldfield, president of Saanich Fruitgrowers' Association, today pointed out that housewives wishing to preserve fruit in October must purchase their extra amounts of sugar for this purpose before the end of September.

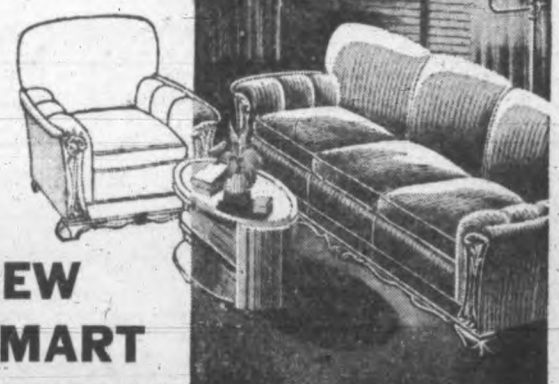

Grapes and late varieties of pears and other fruits will not be ready for picking until early October, Mr. Oldfield said, but in order to preserve them sugar will have to be purchased by Wednesday evening.

He said the Wartime Prices and Trade Board could give full particulars.

Cook Street Grocery, corner of Fort and Cook Streets, reported to police at 12.15 Sunday morning the store had been entered, but that nothing was missing.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE QUICKLY AND EASILY
If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from Modern Pharmacy and Cunningham Drug Stores—or any drugist—and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your drugist will gladly return your money.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE QUICKLY AND EASILY
If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from Modern Pharmacy and Cunningham Drug Stores—or any drugist—and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your drugist will gladly return your money.

Dorothy Dix: World Has a New Eve But the Same Old Adam

Dear Miss Dix: I am a combined business and domestic woman. I work in an office from 9 o'clock to 5.30 every day and from then on until I drop exhausted into my bed. I cook and clean and wash and iron and mend and patch, keeping a five-room house a going concern. This is hard enough, but my work is made harder by my husband, who is so inconsiderate and thoughtless that he has caused me to lose all the love I ever had for him. He not only never helps me with any of my work but he scatters things all over the place. He leaves his shoes and socks in the living-room and if he should ever hang up his clothes, I would drop dead with surprise.

Never once since we have been married has he washed the dishes. I do not ask or expect him to do the housework, but I think it is only his duty at least to wipe the dishes and wash a broom once in a while, sweeping out some of the dirt he has brought in. I put $15 of my salary in the bank each week in his name, but he has never thanked me for this or shown any appreciation for my trying to help him pay off some of our heaviest debts while we are buying a home.

I am so discouraged I am thinking of leaving him, as we have no children and I am self-supporting. There is no question of any other man, Miss Dix. I have had enough of husbands.

READER.

Answer: As I have said many times before in this column, in this modern world of ours, we got a new Eve, but we've got the same old Adam and this has brought about many domestic complications that we have not so far been able to adjust.

One of the most important of these is the status of the husband in the families in which both the wife and the husband work outside the home. What are the husband's duties? What are his obligations? What has a wife to expect of her husband?

What are the wife's duties and what has a husband a right to expect from her? What is a fair division of labor and money for the upkeep of a home?

THE SET-UP HAS CHANGED

In former times when the husband was the sole breadwinner it was obviously the wife's part to cook without sending out an S.O.S. call to her husband for help. When the wife had nothing to do all day but to keep her house, there was no excuse for her to call on her husband for assistance unless he was sick.

But now, when the wife so often follows some gainful occupation and works just as hard and as many hours as her husband does, the whole set-up is changed. It is just as much his duty to do a share of the housework as it is hers, even more so, because he is stronger and more able to bear the burden of a double job than she is.

Yet few men are big enough and broad enough and unselfish enough to accept this viewpoint of the modern relationship between husbands and wives. In practically all of the households of working couples you will find women rushing home from their offices, stopping to buy the groceries with their little lists and then tearing home to cook dinner and clean up the house while their husbands lounge around reading the afternoon paper and listening to the radio.

They don't offer so much as to peel the potatoes or straighten up the living-room or do any of the tasks that they know their wives must perform no matter how their back aches from bending over a typewriter all day, or how their feet hurt from standing behind a counter.

And men's excuse that they don't know anything about housework doesn't go; they could learn. The best chefs in the world are men and no woman ever cleans up a room as immaculately as a steward does on a ship.

Probably most men don't realize how unfair they are being to their wives in making them do all the housework when they are also helping to support the house. They just treat their wives as Grandpa treated his, forgetting that Grandma had only to fry the bacon, she didn't have to bring it in. But it is time husbands waked up to the fact that they have got to do their part or else Eve will put on her bonnet and walk out on them.

In developing aerial color photography, now successful at 15,000 feet, huge felt strips of different colors were photographed from planes and the resulting pictures compared with the original felt for color matching.

Greyhound History Goes Back More Than 300 Years

One of the most ancient of dogs is the greyhound. The records of the tribe go back to ancient Egypt, and the animals are pictured on monuments which were made more than 3,000 years ago. Greyhounds are tall and strong. Their bodies show us at once that they are built for speed, and indeed they are. Their chief use is in the pursuit of rabbits. Rabbits run even faster than foxes but are not able to keep up a fast pace so long. Some hunters have used greyhounds to pursue foxes and deer, as well as rabbits.

1. English greyhound. 2. Russian wolfhound. 3. Afghan greyhound.

The head of a greyhound is long and lean, and so is the neck. In fact, you will find no "excess flesh" on any part of the body of a good example of the breed.

Most hounds depend on their sense of smell when they are in pursuit of game, but the greyhound depends on its keen sight. Often it spies a rabbit hundreds of yards away. The neck is arched, and the dog does not need to stoop when it seizes a victim for its master.

The Russian wolfhound is of the same general build as the greyhound. It has speed and power and its keen sight has helped many a Russian hunter to bring down a wolf. The breed has become popular in England and in North America.

A Russian wolfhound was a campus favorite during my college days. He was named "Bosco," and was owned by a fraternity.

Bosco seemed to have a thirst for knowledge. Day after day he would go to lectures and class exercises. Entering a classroom with the students, he would "lie quiet" and would seem quite content while the instructor spoke. When the bell rang, he would rise and walk out—with as much dignity as any of the students.

Bosco also liked to take hikes with the students on holidays. He once followed me on a 10-mile walk into the country which I made on a pleasant winter's day. Upon my return to the city, he parted company with me, making no effort to follow me into my residence. All in all, he was a dignified, friendly dog.

It is believed that collie dogs, as well as greyhounds, are among the ancestors of the Russian wolfhound. Yet this dog looks much more like a greyhound than like a collie.

Russian wolfhounds are very large dogs. Many of them are two and a half feet high at the shoulders, or a bit more. (For General Interest section of our scrapbook.)

Tax Payments
Pass 1942 Mark

For the first time this year current tax collections in the city exceed those for the corresponding period in 1941, D. A. MacDonald, city comptroller-treasurer, announced today. Last year's collections were the highest for the preceding decade.

Up to Friday night collections amounted to $1,013,233, which is 69.27 per cent of the total levy for the year. At the same date in 1941 collections amounted to $1,010,808, or 70.025 per cent of the levy. The fractional difference in percentage collections was overcome today with payments far above those of the corresponding day last year.

Arrears also showed gains in the percentage bracket. By today $68,196 or 43.356 per cent of the amount outstanding at the beginning of the year had been paid. That exceeded on the percentage basis the $80,055 received at the equivalent 1941 date when the collections represented only 39 per cent of the amount outstanding.

Two-year-old arrears collections today stand at $44,311 or 42.023 per cent against $68,722 or 42.016 per cent last year.

Consistent gains have been recorded since March, when collections in current were far behind those of last year.

In order to avoid the anticipated rush by tax payers to meet their 1942 obligations before the first of a series of penalties goes into force Oct. 2, the comptroller urged citizens to mail in cheques covering amounts outstanding. By using the mail they would avoid standing in line at the wicket, he said.

Victorian 92 Today

Celebrating his 92nd birthday today, Dr. W. Schmidt of "Bellevue," 1263 Richardson Street, is hale and hearty despite his years.

Mr. Schmidt was born in Lunenburg, N.S., in 1850, and has lived in Victoria for half a century. He has been a parishioner of Christ Church Cathedral for many years, and although unable to attend services lately, he keeps in close touch with church activities.

"I am here only because of God's goodness," the white-haired nonagenarian said. Because of years of service and deep interest in the Red Cross, Mr. Schmidt has been awarded a life membership pin.

One brother of 87 lives in Seattle. His subject at all meetings will be "Labor's Position in Wartime."

OTTAWA (CP)—PO. Paris Richmond Eakins announced as missing after air operations in a R.C.A.F. casualty list issued Saturday, is a son of George Eakins, crown prosecutor at Minnedosa, Man.

PO. Eakins, who is 28, was a sports writer on the Winnipeg Free Press from July, 1939, until he enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in November, 1940.
He graduated from the University of Manitoba in arts, and worked for a short time with the Minnedosa Weekly Tribune before he went to the Winnipeg Free Press.

To Clear Sulphur

After spending an hour and a half amid sulphur fumes at 446 Linden Avenue, Sunday afternoon, two members of the city police force, Constables John Howe and Joseph Kelly, both testified to the efficiency of the standard civilian gas respirator.

Called to this address at 3.25, because sulphur fumes were spreading to the other half of the building, police found the vacant half of the building was being fumigated.

The sulphur fumes were so thick they could not get inside the front door without using respirators. With the masks, however, they experienced no trouble and went to the basement where they removed 10 sulphur pans. After taking the pans into the garden they spent nearly an hour and a half clearing the smoke out of the building.

The two policemen said they "didn't even get a whiff of sulphur" the whole time they were using the masks.

Ten culinary tricks that make meals more nutritious—and more delicious

It has always been your family duty that you serve healthful, nutritious meals—now it is your patriotic duty that you do so. These kitchen tricks, from the Safeway Homemakers' Bureau, are really ten important ways to conserve or add vitamins and minerals (and, at the same time, sparkle) to your everyday meals.

1. A new general rule for pan-frying vegetables is to use about 1/4 cup water in any kind of flat-bottomed cooking utensil and add about a tablespoon butter, oil, or other fat, and heat to the boiling point. Then put in freshly shredded or diced vegetables, salt lightly, cover tightly, and cook just until tender—10 to 30 minutes.

2. It is better to cook green, string flavored vegetables in a little more boiling water, uncovered. This keeps green vegetables green and modifies strong flavors.

3. Do not use acids to preserve color in green vegetables. It destroys valuable vitamins and, if vegetables are correctly cooked, it is unnecessary.

4. Juices from cooked vegetables contain much of their minerals and vitamins, and should be served with the vegetables if possible. Otherwise, add these juices to soups and gravies.

5. Always buy fresh, tender, young vegetables and there's no point in following the above rules. Fresh vegetables are not only best for flavor, but they contain more minerals and vitamins.

6. Cook all fruits as short a time as possible, in as little water as necessary.

7. Cook dried fruits, if soaked, in the same water that you soaked them in.

8. Use fruit juices from cooked or canned fruits to sweeten desserts (in place of sugar) and in salad dressings, if they are not served with the fruit itself.

9. Use milk as much as possible in cooking, besides its use in custards, puddings, and scalloped dishes. Milk adds nutritive qualities to oatmeal, rice, cornmeal, and other cereals usually cooked in water.

10. Use eggs as much as possible in cooking. They add nutrition to many foods as well as improve texture and flavor.

A Word About Leftovers
And while you're adding that sparkle to your meals, avoid having leftovers. After a day or two in the icebox, vegetables from the vitamin standpoint have much less value than when freshly cooked. Become vitamin conscious, for remember the word vitamin means life.

RULES FOR WAR-TIME
TEA BREWING

1. Measure carefully the amount of tea and boiling water into the pot. One level teaspoon of tea and one cup of boiling water should be used for each cup of the tea. Don't guess the amount, either of tea or of the boiling water. This is the chief cause of waste.

2. Convention has always advised an extra teaspoon of tea for the pot. As a special wartime measure, this cup should be eliminated without seriously impairing the brew. Each teaspoon of tea thus saved means another cup of tea for another day.

3. Always make sure that the water is actually boiling, not just steaming but bubbling. One of the principal causes of waste is water not brought to the boiling point. It must be boiling when poured on the tea leaves in order to bring out the full flavor.

4. Brew the tea for at least five minutes before pouring. If a weaker brew is desired, three minutes is usually sufficient.
